

What price justice? Experts or treating clinicians? LB Islington v Al Alas and Wray

An article for Lawtel

12th July 2012

Barristers

Jo Delahunty KC

Discusses, by reference to the case of Islington LBC v Al-Alas, the authors concerns in relation to the proper reliance on, and effective use of, experts in cases of alleged non-accidental injury to a child. Explores whether the speedy justice in care cases which will result from the proposed introduction of a six months time limit for completing care proceedings and the mooted imposition of restrictions on use of experts may lead to injustice.

To view the Publication log on to lawtel and click here

Author

Jo Delahunty KC

Source

Lawtel