

Re B (Children: Uncertain Perpetrator) (2019)

[2019] EWCA Civ 575

04/04/2019

Barristers

Sally Bradley

Court

Court of Appeal

Practice Areas

Public Children Law

The Court of Appeal gave guidance on the correct approach in fact-finding cases where the identity of the perpetrator of significant harm to a child was uncertain: nobody could be placed into the pool of possible perpetrators unless there was a real possibility that they had caused the harm.

To read the judgment click here.

Permission

